Poor 'Gene'! Abe beat him to it.

We will continue to call it "Stricken Frisco."

Why not a big drilling contest in Globe on the Fourth? Send in your answers to the Silver Belt.

An eastern press dispatch says there is a shortage in tombstones. A very grave affair!

Talesmen who want to get off the Haywood jury don't seem to have much trouble in doing so.

Putting a town on a boom and putting it on the bum are two different things, although they sound pretty much the same.

Almost time for some exposé to come to the front with the price Ike Stephenson paid for the senatorial nomination in Wisconsin.

We are beginning to believe that the conspiracy to assassinate the czar was something like that $5,000,000 conspiracy against President Roosevelt.

President Pat Calhoun of the United Railroads did not blame the "private prosecutor" for the earthquake and fire, for which the prosecutor must be duly thankful.

There will be an election May 29 to vote on a $40,000 bond issue to build two new schools for Globe. It is hardly necessary to ask Globe taxpayers to turn out and vote for the issue.

The Ohio State Journal asks, "Is a Democrat a turtle?" Judging by Mr. Bryan we guess no. Every time he gets thrown on his back he manages to flop to his feet and tell how it happened.

Vice President Fairbanks has an agent in Arizona peddling the dope that the Hoosier statesman is the real thing for the presidency. He will make very little headway in this territory if it is confirmed that Beveridge is for Fairbanks.

We have often spoken of the fertility of the Gila valley and the last issue of the Safford Guardian shows that with good care, attention and irrigation, poets can be raised. And still Ambassador Bryce says there are too few poets in America.

In a speech at Muscogee, I. T., an orator said: "We love the woman who loves her husband and her country, with no desire to run either." If that territory has such a woman, it certainly deserves statehood, but we doubt very much if her husband would stand for anyone else loving her.

CAUSES OF RAILWAY WRECKS

Vice President Kruttschnitt of the Union Pacific railway charges that poor rails is one of the leading causes of the frequent wrecks on the roads. Mr. Harriman, who ought also to know something about this, says that Kruttschnitt is correct. Some of the officers of the United States Steel corporation, on the other hand, declare that the accusation is unfounded. But the theory of Harriman and Kruttschnitt has something to say for itself. According to the latter personage, in February, 1907, 449 rails broke, and 179 of these were of the modern sort, laid within the previous five or six months.

This is a matter which concerns not only the railway companies, but the general public. Most of those wrecks kill people, and the victims are usually neither railway officials nor members of the steel trust, but are private citizens. Railway employees figure in the list of the dead and wounded in some of these wrecks, but most of the victims are plain people who are traveling for business or pleasure, and have a right to feel, when they start on their journey, that they will be able to complete their trip in safety. The percentage of loss of life on American roads is greater than it is on the railways of any of the great countries of Europe, and the cause, whatever it is, for this increased mortality ought to be ascertained and corrected.

On the other hand, many of the wrecks are undoubtedly due to the carelessness or inefficiency of the railway officers or employees. It was a broken locomotive wheel which caused the Shiner calamity on the Southern Pacific a few days ago. Other smash-ups recently have been due to other sorts of defects in the rolling stock or the roadbeds of the roads. For these the railway companies are responsible. There is a lack of vigilance often by the railway chiefs or employees which brings disaster. The railway officers say that poor rails are due to the greed of the steel trust. There may be truth in this charge, although Judge Gary, the head of the United States Steel corporation, says that the reason for the breaking of the rails is that the roads, for economy, buy rails which are too light for the traffic. The controversy between the railways and the steel men ought to result in changes which will diminish the number of the railway accidents, which have become a discredit to the country.

DON'T WORRY CLUB

The third annual outing of the Don't Worry Club was pulled off the first Sunday in this month and was attended by the largest crowd yet gathered for this most enjoyable event. The club is one of very large membership and was organized solely for the purpose of coming to gether once a year for this delightful outing.

The location selected for this picnic is one of picturesque surroundings among the pines of the Pinals, with a beautiful running stream of pure mountain water, which could be used for drinking purposes in case everything else became exhausted. The distance to this beautiful spot from Globe is about twelve miles and was reached by the different members in various ways, some on horseback, some in buggies and wagons, and some of the most enthusiastic members were known to walk in preference to missing this enjoyable time.

A four-horse outfit was sent in advance with the refreshments, but owing to the unfamiliarity of the country on the part of the driver they were carried several miles beyond the stopping place and it was necessary to send out scouts to locate them. The driver was found three or four miles off the trail and was finally herded into camp.

After comfortably locating the horses under the shade of the pines the real program was entered upon, namely, the most cruel and barbarous initiation that has ever occurred in recent history. The new candidates were first given the degree and it was then found necessary to reinstate the old members, as they had become rather rusty in the secret work, and in order to polish them up a bit the full dose was given them with a little new work that had been added to the ritual since the last convocation.

Of course it would be giving away the secrets of the order to say anything of what the initiating ceremony consisted, but it will probably give some hint when it is mentioned that each candidate found it necessary to hang his clothing up to dry after being subjected to this ordeal.

Many enjoyable features of the program then followed each other in rapid order until high noon arrived and a spread fit for kings was ravenously partaken of. Talk about good things to eat! Such a spread would have to be seen to even get a faint idea of the marked proficiency shown on the part of the committee appointed for that purpose. Everyone showed a disposition to outdo the other in the matter of putting the good things away and when the beasts of burden started on their return trip drawing after them their cumbersome wagon, even they could not help but notice the extreme lightness of the load as compared with the out-
